December 14, 1918

To His Excellency, A. O. Stanley,
Governor of Kentucky,
Frankfort.

Sir:

I have the honor to submit the following report from this office in conformity with a resolution of the General Assembly, approved March 27th. 1902, which reads as follows:

"That the Adjutant General of the State of Kentucky is hereby directed to gather all the data obtainable concerning the different organizations who enlisted or served in the army of the Confederate States in the War of the Rebellion compiling the same by regiment, battery, troop and company in the usual form of reports of the Adjutant General made heretofore in this Commonwealth in regard to other similar organizations, and adding thereto such other information as he may deem best, and he will enter same upon a book to be kept in his office, as a public record, giving regiments, etc, in their consecutive number, and he will cause the same to be printed in a book to be well bound in cloth and furnish one copy to each County Clerk of this Commonwealth and one copy to each Adjutant General of the Several Commonwealths of the United States, preserve a reasonable number for his office and the State Library and cause a suitable number to be printed and placed with the State Librarian for sale at a price to be agreed upon by and between the said Adjutant General and Librarian."

It is greatly to be regretted that the historical records of the brave men who followed the Confederate flag and gave their lives to the cause they loved, are so incomplete, owing to the fact that the Commanding Officers of Regiments and Companies have neglected to make proper reports, etc.

There must be many hundreds of names not found on the returns, so carelessly were the records kept, or were lost by capture. Frequently companies were attached to several regiments under different company letters, and regiments were also numbered variously.

Whilst the greatest care has been given this work, I feel that it is far from being perfect, and only those who fought to the end and know the irregularities of the life of a Confederate Soldier can appreciate and understand the difficulties of this work.

An Act of the Legislature, approved March, 1918, transferring the duties of compiling the Confederate Records from the Adjutant-General's Office to the office of Commissioner of Pensions.

Respectfully,
W. J. STONE,
Commissioner of Pensions.

The Regiment was also called the 4th Kentucky Mounted Rifles.

The following shows the date and station of Regiment and remarks as far as given on the rolls.

December 31, 1863, January 9, 1864—Camp Tunnell Hill, Ga. Engaged in action at Missionary Ridge and assisted in covering retreat of our army as far as Taylor's Ridge, at which place the enemy attacked us and was repulsed.

February 29, 1864—Camp near Oxford, Ala. On duty at Tunnell Hill, picketing and scouting until February 7th, when we were ordered to this place to recruit our horses.

May 1, 1864—Camp Tunnell Hill, Ga. Left Oxford April 12th and arrived here April 18, 1864.

June 12, 1864—Camp Tunnell Hill, Ga. Was engaged with enemy at Charleston, Tenn., December 27, 1863.

June 29, 1864—Camp near Marietta, Ga. Arrived at this camp about May 25, 1864; engaged in action five miles north of Marietta, Ga.

July 10, 1864—Camp near Marietta, Ga. Engaged the enemy at Dug Gap May 8th, and on the 9th came upon the enemy at Snake Creek Gap and drove them about a mile; engaged in skirmishes at Resaca and assisted in covering retreat of our army across Etowah River and were with General Wheeler at Cassville, since which time we have been constantly picketing and scouting.

Many changes occurred later in Field and Staff, and in Company officers, impossible to note as no record was kept. After the organization, the Regiment was assigned to the Second Brigade of General John Morgan's Division of Cavalry. Marched from Alexandria, Tenn., about the 18th of December, 1862, with General Morgan, on his raid into Kentucky, known as "his Christmas raid."

Crossing the Cumberland near Red Sulphur Springs, Tenn., marched to Tompkinsville, Ky., thence to Glasgow, thence to Muldraugh Hill trestle on the L. & N. Railway, thence to Rolling Fork, thence to Bardstown, around Lebanon, to Campbellsville, Columbia, Burksville, crossed the Cumberland River into Tennessee, back to Alexandria, Tenn., about January 10, 1863. Thence to Liberty, Tenn. The Regiment passed the winter and spring of 1862 and 1863 in the vicinity of Liberty and Woodbury, Tenn., picketing and scouting, guarding the right of General Bragg's Army while it held the line at Tullahoma, Tenn. In June, 1863, the Regiment (having been left behind by General John Morgan when he marched on his Ohio raid) retreated to Chattanooga with the Army of Tennessee, passing through McMinnville and Sequatchie Valley. From Chattanooga the Regiment was sent to guard the Tennessee River at Decatur, Guntersville and Tuscumbia, Ala. It guarded these positions until just before the battle of Chickamauga, marched to Chickamauga, but reached there a few days after the battle.

On duty in Lookout Valley and at Harrison's Landing, Tenn., until the battle of Missionary Ridge. Took part in this battle, covered retreat of the army to Dalton, fought at Ringgold Gap, thence to Tunnell Hill, Ga. Wintered at this point, picketing and scouting in front of the Army of Tennessee, then in camp at Dalton, Ga.

Just before the battle of Missionary Ridge, the Regiment was brigaded with the 1st Kentucky Cavalry, 2d Kentucky Cavalry and Dortch's Battalion. This Brigade was known as Grigsby's Kentucky Cavalry Brigade, later Williams', later Breckinridge's. This Brigade was assigned to General Joseph E. Wheeler's cavalry corps, and served under him until the close of the war. The Regiment was recruited for General Morgan's command, but did not accompany him on the Ohio raid, and never served again with him. Though several applications for its return to General Morgan were made, General Johnston would never allow it.

The Regiment was on duty at Tunnell Hill, Ga., when Sherman began his Atlanta campaign May 7, 1864. On the 8th, the Regiment, with its Brigade, fought General Geary's Division of Hooker's Corps, at Dug Gap; Geary defeated. May 9th, engaged at Snake Creek Gap, later Resaca; thence to Cassville, Cartersville, Alatoona, Marietta, Roseville Factory, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, July 22, 1864. Was with the troops which captured General Stoneman. Later at Jug Tavern with Colonel Breckinridge—defeated and captured almost the entire remnant of Stoneman's force which made effort to escape. About May 10, 1864, crossed the Chattahooche River, marching North with General Jos. Wheeler to destroy Sherman's railroad communications. Marched to Dalton, thence Cleveland, Tenn., thence to Maryville, Tenn., thence around Knoxville over the mountains to Sparta, thence to Lebanon, around Murfreesboro to Triune, Tenn., thence to Columbia, back by Wartrace to Sparta, over the mountains, around Knoxville, up the Tennessee Railroad to Bristol, Tenn., thence to Abingdon, Va., to Saltville. Fought in the battle of Saltville, defeating General Burbridge. Thence through East Tennessee up the French Broad River to Asheville, N. C., thence to Charlotte, N. C., thence to Greenville, S. C., thence to Athens, Ga., thence to West Point, Ga. Here met General Wheeler from whom we were separated in Middle Tennessee. Back to Atlanta, Ga., just in time to confront General Sherman on his march to the sea, which began November 16, 1864. Opposed Sherman's march from Atlanta to Savannah via Macon, Millidgeville, Louisville and other points; arrived at Savannah December 20, 1864; opposed Sherman from Savannah to Columbia, S. C. Fought Sherman at Columbia, 17th of February, 1865. From Columbia to Winnsboro, thence to Cheraw, thence across the Great Pedee River to Fayetteville, N. C., thence to Battle of Bentonville, N. C., March 18, 1865. Thence to Raleigh, N. C., April 11, 1865. Here heard of General Lee's surrender. At Raleigh, Dibrells' Division of cavalry, of which Kentucky Brigade was a part, was ordered by General Jos. Wheeler to proceed to Greensboro, N. C., as an escort for President Jefferson Davis and his Cabinet, who had reached that point retreating from Richmond, Va. Escorted Mr. Davis and Cabinet to Charlotte, N. C., April 18, 1865. Here halted a few days pending negotiations between Generals Johnston and Sherman. At this point were joined by General Duke's Brigade of General Morgan's old Division, also Furguson's and Vaughn's Brigades. Left Charlotte, marched via Greenville, Abbeville to Petersburg, S. C., on the Savannah River, May 8, 1868. At Abbeville, S. C., was held the last council of war of the Confederate Government. At this council there were present President Davis, General John C. Breckinridge, then Secretary of War, General Braxton Bragg, and the five Brigade Commanders, Generals Debrell, Furguson, Vaughn, General Basil Duke and Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge of the 9th Kentucky Cavalry, then commanding the Kentucky Cavalry Brigade. At this final council it was decided, without a dissenting voice (except Mr. Davis), that the struggle was hopeless, and that it would be futile to make an effort to reach the Transmissippi Department and a criminal sacrifice of life to protract the war longer. Mr. Davis reluctantly accepted this view, and decided to make an effort for his escape. The President was assured that the officers and men held themselves ready to make any sacrifice for his personal safety. He declined the services of any large body of troops, feeling that by attracting attention it would rather hinder than assist in his escape. Captain Given Campbell, of the Kentucky Brigade, was accepted by him as his escort. The facts stated here in regard to this last Council of War were related more than once to the writer by Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge of the 9th Kentucky Cavalry, who was present. After it became known that there would be no further effort to protract the struggle, the 9th Cavalry, with its Brigade and Division (Debrell's), marched from the Savannah River to Washington, Ga. These troops halted here by the advice and counsel of General John C. Breckinridge, Secretary of War, C. S. A., and the officers of these commands. Here paroled on the 10th day of May, 1865 (one month after General Lee's surrender) by an officer detailed for that purpose, by General Upton of the Federal Army.

While under the command of General John H. Morgan, the 9th Regiment took part in the following engagements: Glasgow, Ky.; Elizabethtown, Ky.; Muldraugh's Hill Trestle; Rolling Fork; Milton, Tenn.; Snowhill, Tenn., and a number of other minor engagements. While under the command of General Joseph E. Wheeler, Army of Tennessee, the 9th Kentucky Cavalry was engaged with the enemy at Missionary Ridge, Graysville, Ringgold Gap, Ga., Snake Creek Gap, Resaca, Noonday Creek, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, July 22, 1864; capture of Stoneman near Macon—Jug Tavern—Dalton, Tenn., Marysville, Tenn., Triune, Tenn., Saltville, Va., Bear Creek Station, Louisville, Ga., Lawtonville, S. C., Columbia, S. C., attack on Kilpatrick near Fayetteville, N. C., Bentonville, N. C. The 9th Kentucky Cavalry was a well officered and well drilled and disciplined Regiment. It maintained its organization, discipline and morale until it surrendered. Its service was constant, arduous and hazardous, its work was largely picketing and scouting and skirmishing on the front, winter and summer, night and day, with but little respite. The Regiment performed every duty assigned it cheerfully, faithfully, gallantly, and was frequently complimented by its superiors. It remained true to the Cause for which it battled to the end, and only laid down its arms when it was decided by those in authority that the struggle was hopeless, and that it was futile to make an effort to protract it longer.

The muster rolls of the 9th Regiment of Kentucky Cavalry (and I suppose the same is true of all the Regiments), which are on file in the Adjutant General's office at Frankfort, and which have been sent out to the companies for correction, are evidently the original roll of the companies made out at the organization of the Regiment, and were on file at Richmond, Va., and captured by the Federal Army. These rolls are necessarily imperfect in many respects. When it is remembered that there are no written records in existence from which to gather information, and that data for correcting the rolls can be obtained alone from the recollection of individuals forty-five years after the events have transpired, it must be evident that the task is not only difficult but impossible.

ROLL OF COMPANY F, NINTH REGIMENT CAVALRY,

					When	Where
106	Frank Wilkerson	Private	Jan. —, 1864.	Atlanta, Ga.
107	James W. Whitted	Private	Jan. —, 1864.	Georgie
108	V. N. White	Private	Sept. 1, 1862.	Lexington, Ky.

NOTE.—Company "E" of the 9th Kentucky Covalry was formed at Lexington, Ky., in Auguset, or first of September, 1862, and a portion of it recruited in that section. The large part, however, was composed of men who had previously enlisted but for personal reasons obtained transfers to this Company. In this connection of the roll submitted to me I have given date of first enlistments when known. The roll submitted to me was prepared in the last days of the war while the command confronted General Sherman in his march from Savannah, Ga., through theCarolinas, the conditions necessitated constant movement and the roll was hurredly prepared, doubtless from memory, without the aid of any previously written roll.

While the 9th Kentucky Cavalry did not accompany General Morgan in his expedition into Ohio, the large number of the Company reported as being captured or lost in Ohio in June and July, 1863, is accounted for by the fact that Captain T. H. Hines and Lieutenant J. M. Porter with a large detachment of the Company had preceded General Morgan into Kentucky and Indiana, and having joined General Morgan at Brandenburg, where he crossed the Ohio River, shared the fate of that expedition.

Being sent to the Infantry or Artillery was a punishment for failure to properly care for horse and the incorrigible habit of foraging and being absent without leave.

REMARKS

107. Wounded near Snake Creek Gap, Ga., in 1864, and left behind.
108. Paroled at Washington, Ga., May, 1865.

I have made no change in the marks for desertion though convinced that in some cases injustice was done the parties so marked, at least that there were circumstanies paliating the offense. Most of these charges of desertion are of date shortly after the formation of the Company and of men newly recruited who, being sick at the time, were necessarily left behind in the rapid withdrawal of the Army from the State. These possibly from condition of health or other causes were prevented from again reaching their command. As to the dead, I am far from sure that the list is complete. The list of wounded is very incomplete, since no note was made except of those disabled from further service.

I have added but two names to the roll, those of Peck and Whitted. There were a few other, since the Company at its formation numbered more than one hundred, but I do not now recall them.

Less than twenty of the Company, rank in file, were paroled at the surrended at Washington, Ga., in May, 1865. Of the officers only the 1st Lieutenant, a Sergeant and two Corporals.

(Signed) E. L. HINES.

THE ELEVENTH KENTUCKY REGIMENT CAVALRY, C. S. A.

The Eleventh Kentucky Regiment of Cavalry, C. S. A., was organized on the 10th day of August, 1862, and was mustered into service September 10th, 1862, at Richmond, Kentucky, and Was composed exclusively of Kentuckians. It is with regret that the rolls of the companies are admittedly incomplete, but even with the assistance of Governor James B. McCreary, who was the Major and Lieutenant-Colonel of this Regiment, full lists have not been obtained. The heavy lists of casualties in action has been but meagerly furnished, and the rolls as published are complete with the material on hand.

On Sunday, August 31st, 1862, the day after the battle of Richmond, Ky., Mr. David Waller Chenault, arriving in Richmond from his home in Madison County, found a number of young men of Madison and some of the adjoining counties, assembled, and anxious to join the Confederate Army. Upon the recommendation of many of the most prominent and influential citizens of the neighborhood of southern sympathies, Gen. E. Kirby Smith, commanding the Confederate Army at Richmond, Ky., tendered to David Waller Chenault authority to organize and recruit a regiment of Kentuckians for the Confederate service. After James B. McCreary had done active service as a soldier and helped to drill and organize the regiment, Joseph T. Tucker, of Winchester and James B. McCreary, of Richmond, were elected and commissioned respectively as Lieutenant-Colonel and Major of the proposed regiment. On Septmber 10th, 1862, at Richmond, Ky., the regiment consisting of nine companies, eight hundred officers and enlisted men, were mustered into the Confederate service and assigned to the Brigade of General John H. Morgan. This regiment bore the distinction of being the first regiment of Kentucky soldiers to join the service of the South after the advance of Generals Bragg and Kirby Smith into Kentucky. It is claimed for it that it should have been designated as the 5th Regiment, being the first regiment of cavalry in Kentucky after the fourth.

The Regiment was first known as the Seventh Kentucky Cavalry, and was so numbered for several months. Col. Richard M. Gano claiming the designation of Seventh and being so recognized by the War Department, after which Colonel Chenault's Regiment was known and continued as the Eleventh Kentucky Cavalry.

There seems to have been a command of cavalry from Webster County, Ky., under Colonel William Hollis, known as the Eleventh Kentucky Cavalry, C. S. A., consisting of about 450 men. On June 22nd, 1863, this regiment was defeated in a fight with the 35th United States Cavalry, in which Colonel Hollis was killed. The regiment was disbanded and its members joined other commands.

Chenault's Eleventh Kentucky Cavalry was composed of ten companies, "A" and "C" were recruited in Clark County; "E", "B" and "F" in Madison County; Company "D" in Estill County; Company "G" in Bourbon County, and Company "H" in Madison, Estill and Montgomery Counties; Company "I" probably in Estill County and Company "K" in Clinton and Wayne Counties, while the regiment was on duty in that section. After the Regiment was ordered to report to Brigade General Morgan, Companies "D" and "G" were consolidated, and an addition of other companies caused a change to be made in the letters of some of the companies. At the death of Colonel Chenault, the regiment numbered 500 efficient men.

The Eleventh Kentucky Cavalry under Colonel D. W. Chenault did not have to wait before commencing its strenuous career.

On September 10th, the day it was mustered in, orders were received from General Kirby Smith, then at Lexington, Ky., for one of its companies to go to Irvine and Estill County to reconnoiter as to the movements of the Federal troops under Gen. George W. Morgan in that direction from Cumberland Gap, and to keep in observation of the movements of the Federal forces in whatever direction they might march. Another part of the regiment was ordered to report at once to General John H. Morgan for service in one of his scouting forays in the mountains.

On September 15th, four of the companies were sent to Garrard County to disberse or capture a troublesome lot of bushwhackers and "home guard" under command of a man named King.

On the same day, Company "C", under command of Lieutenant James Levi Wheeler, was sent into Winchester and Clark County with orders to suppress bushwhackers and break up and disarm men known as "Home Guards." These strenuous and hazardous duties were followed before the officers and their companies had had time and opportunity to drill or be instructed in the ordinary movements and discipline of a soldier.

On the retirement of the Confederate forces from Kentucky, Colonel Chenault with his regiment left Richmond on Oct., 18th, 1862, and retired with the forces of General Kirby Smith through the "Big Hill" Route across the mountains of Tennessee. The regiment remained on duty with General irby Smith until late in November, when it reported to General John H. Morgan, near Lebanon, Tennessee. Although assigned to Morgan's Brigade, the regiment as a whole did not join him before the retreat, and did not go out of Kentucky.

On November 20, 1862, the Confederate War Department issued an order assigning the Eleventh Regiment to General Abram Bufords Cavalry Brigade, but the order was subsequently revoked by the Secretary of War.

On December 9th, 1862, just three months from its organization and enlistment, the regiment was conspicuously engaged in the battle of Hartsville, Tennessee, one of General Morgan's greatest and most brilliant victories. General Morgan in his official report of the battle says: "Colonel Chenault led his men with the most determined bravery, encouraging them by voice and example." The Eleventh Regiment was posted in a prominent position and took a very important part in the fight. This Regiment attacking obliquely on the flank drove the enemy who were in greatly superior numbers, for nearly half a mile without a check, forcing the Federal right wing back upon their own left wing.

On the 18th of December, 1862, after the battle of Hartsville, General Morgan received his commission as Brigadier General and his forces were oganized into two brigades which he commanded as Acting Major-General. The Eleventh Kentucky Cavalry was assigned to the 2nd Brigade, commanded by Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge, Acting Brigadier General.

On December 22nd, General Morgan started on his famous "Christmas Raid" into Kentucky. The Eleventh Kentucky

REMARKS

1. Prisoner of war.
2. Killed in Tennessee in September, 1863.
3. Killed in Tennessee, Sept., 1863.

NOTE—Allowance should be made for those reported deserted. Many left to join other commands without waiting for regular transfers, others were absent without leave and later returned to duty, while others were cut off in the enemy's lines and could not rejoin their command and were erroneously reported deserted in consequence.

Cavalry was conspicuous for the part it took in this raid. On December 29th, Colonel Chenault and his regiment was sent in advance to burn the stockade and trestle at Boston, in Nelson County. This work was successfully done, capturing and paroling the garrison and reporting back that night to General Morgan at Bardstown. On January 14th, 1863, when General Morgan had returned to camp at McMinnville, Tenn., the Eleventh Regiment Cavalry was ordered back to Clinton County, Kentucky, to guard against a dash of the Union forces from that direction. Starting January 15th, in a pelting rain, it marched through rain and snow for five days, swimming rivers and reaching Albany on the morning of the 22nd, much exhausted and many of the men dismounted, the hard riding having thoroughly disabled their horses. On the 24th, Major McCreary went to Monticello, twenty-five miles away, and drove the Federal garrison, a company under Captain Hare, out of Monticello and across the Cumberland River.

For the time that the command was in the immediate vicinity of Albany, the exhausted condition of the men and horses was much improved by an abundance of good rations and forage, but the duties were exacting, constant and severe, picketing and scouting in every direction, and with the knowledge that with Colonel R. T. Jacob's Regiment, the 9th Kentucky Cavalry (Union) was at Creelsboro, only 12 miles away, and General Frank Wolford's Brigade of Federals at Burksville, only 14 miles away, it was only by the greatest vigilance and activity that the small Confederate force could maintain its position, and do the immense amount of picketing and scouting required of them. At this time, from January 25th to February 15th, the Regiment had only about six hundred effective men, the balance being sick or dismounted, and 120 miles distant from support, and the enemy already in large force, and that force constantly being increased.

On February 10th, 1863, it was learned that Colonel Frank Wolford would make a speech in Burksville on the 12th. Early in the morning of that day, Major James B. McCreary started from Albany with two companies and on approaching Burksville, formed his men behind a hill and from the bushes near the river watched the assembling of the crowd at the Court-house to hear the speaking. There was a guard of soldiers at the ferry within four hundred yards of the court-house. Major McCreary, with his men on foot, charged to a school house immediately on the banks of the river, and drove the dismounted pickets from their horses and broke up the speaking in tremendous disorder. The boys christened the school house Fort McCreary.

On February 19th, by order of General Morgan, two of the companies, Terrill's and Dickens', were detailed to accompany Colonel Roy Cluke on his raid into Eastern Kentucky, and at the same time the field of picket duty for the Eleventh Kentucky was extended to include the County of Wayne as well as Clinton.

On March 7th, Colonel Chenault, with a part of his Regiment went to the re-inforcement of General Pegram at Beaver Creek Raccoon Valley, and returned to Monticello in Wayne County on the 10th inst., following. At this time and place, Col. Chenault mustered in a company for service in his regiment that had been recruited during his stay in Wayne and Clinton Counties.

It was during this stay of about sixty days from January 22nd to April 1st, the regiment was visited by the mysterious disease known as brain fever, and suffered by deaths from this cause, the loss of seventeen men, among whom were Captain Willis F. Spahr and Lieutenant Charles H. Covington.

Early in April, General Pegram in an unsuccessful raid into Central Kentucky had met defeat at Somerset and being sorely pressed, Colonel Chenault, on the 11th day of April, rapidly marched to the Cumberland river and with his regiment protected the crossing of Pegram's command and probably saved it from capture.

The two companies of the Eleventh Cavalry, who had gone with Colonel Cluke, returned to the regiment on the 18th of April, after suffering severe loss in an engagement at Mt. Sterling on March 21st, 1863. Captain Robert B. Terrill and Lieutenant Seth Maupin of Company "E", were both severely wounded. Captain Terrill was shot through both legs and did not recover from his wounds until several years after the close of the war.

On April 20th, the Cumberland River then being fordable the Federals crossed a large force at Mill Springs and also at the mouth of Greasy Creek. Lieutenant Colonel Tucker met them on the Mill Springs road, and Major McCreary met them on the Greasy Creek Road, the remainder of the regiment remaining at Monticelle under Colonel Chenault. The overwhelming force of the enemy caused the Elventh Cavalry to re-unite at Monticello, and leaving Monticello at night retreated towards Travistown and returning again to Monticello in a few days. The regiment continued to remain on the north side of the Cumberland River for some time watching the crossing and reporting the movements of the enemy.

On April 28th, Colonel Chenault reports to General Morgan "I have just returned from Mill Springs. The enemy have crossed at Morrins' and I have been skirmishing with them all day. I have just received a note from Major McCeary that they have crossed at Green's Creek and he is skirmishing with them in that direction."

From this time, April 29th, the pressure of the enemy largely re-inforced, reaching in a few days a force of five thousand, forced Colonel Chenault and his 600 men to retire towards the Ohio River and to camp about twelve miles from Livingston. The Federal forces, five thousand strong, were pressing his six hundred men hard. General Morgan sent the Tenth Kentucky Cavalry, under Colonel Adam R. Johnson, to Colonel Chenault's relief and a few days after General Bragg sent Palmer's Brigade and with this force saved the situation.

On May 8th and 9th, 1863, the Eleventh Kentucky Cavalry bore the brunt of the battle of "Greasy Creek" in Wayne County. It was in this battle that the men of this Regiment were under fire for ten hours without water or food, and when overpowered and compelled to fall back, did so in good order, and rallied and charged the enemy, driving him before them until recalled by General Morgan. The loss in that action was the gallant and efficient Captain Joseph Chenault, of Company "B", killed; Captain A. J. Bruner, of Company "C", severely wounded in the foot; Orderly Sergeant B. F. McCoy, shot through the body and also had leg amputated; Corporal John McClay, killed; and Captain Thomas B. Collins, of Company

"F", severely wounded, but refused to leave the field until after the conflict was closed. In Colonel Chenault's report, special mention is made of the efficient services of Lieutenant-Colonel Tucker, Major McCreary and Adjutant William L. Hickman.

On May 25th, Colonel Chenault's regiment permanently evacuated Clinton and Wayne Counties and returned to camp at Alexandria, Tenn., where Morgan's forces were mobilized in preparation for the Ohio raid.

General John Morgan, with his command, started on their great and disasterous raid, moving out of Alexandria, Tenn., on June 11th. Colonel Chenault, with the greater part of the Eleventh Cavalry, accompanied General Morgan and returning into Kentucky, fighting and skirmishing on their way, went into camp at Burkesville, and remained several days. On the 23rd, they bivouaced at Columbia, in Adair County. Early on the morning of July 4th, the command reached Green River Brdige, in Adair County, where they found the 25th Michigan in command of Colonel Orlando H. Moore, strongly intrenched. In attempting to dislodge the enemy, was brought on a most disastrous engagement, resulting in the loss of many of the flower of Morgan's command. In storming the stronghold, the gallant Colonel Chenault was killed in the midst of the abatis, "firing his pistol into the earthwork, and calling on his men to follow him." Major McCreary assumed command after the death of Colonel Chenault. In this battle three prominent officers were killed by the side of Major McCreary—Colonel Chenault as he was going into the battle; Major Brent, when he reported Colonel Howard Smith's Regiment to re-inforce Major McCreary, and Captain Alex. Tribble, who had just received orders to act as Major while McCreary acted as Colonel. After the battle of Green River Bridge and the death of Colonel Chenault, Lieutenant-Colonel Joseph Tucker was promoted to Colonel and Major James B. McCreary, to be Lieutenant-Colonel of the Eleventh Kentucky Cavalry.

On the next day, July 5th, the regiment proceeded to Lebanon, Kentucky, and took part in the defeat and capture of the Federal forces at that place and the destruction of vast amounts of military stores. The regiment then proceedsd on its march to the Ohio River, and took its full part and share in all the dangers and fatigues of that wonderful march through the enemy's country, covering a march of nearly eleven hundred miles, eating and sleepig in the saddle, and fighting daily the ever increasing hosts that were gathering against them, established the high water mark for soldierly fortitude and endurance. Most of the Eleventh Cavalry were taken prisoners at Buffington's Island, Ohio, on July 17th, 1863. About two hundred of this regiment, however, under Lieutenant-Colonel McCreary, made a charge and escaped capture at Buffington's Island, but were surrounded by a large force of Federal Cavalry the next day, and surrendered near Cheshire, Ohio.

A few of the men of the Eleventh were among the band of 300 who got safely back to Kentucky side by swimming their horses across the Ohio River and a few more escaped capture at Buffington's Island to be made prisoners a few days after when General Morgan made his last stand in Columbia County, Ohio, and surrendered the remnant of his gallant band. At that time, Second Lieutenant Rodney Haggard, of Company "A", was the ranking officer of the remnant of the Eleventh Cavalry still remaining with General Morgan. The forces of General Morgan had been reduced to 300 men all told, and this little band was surrounded by thousands of Federals, including regulars, volunteers, militia, home guard and "squirrel hunters" who had gathered from all quarters to beset him. After their capture, the prisoners were sent to Cincinnati, Ohio. From thence they were sent to Camp Chase, Ohio, Camp Morton, Indiana, and Camp Douglas, Illinois. The officers were imprisoned at the Ohio Penitentary, at Columbus, Johnson Island, Ohio, Alleghany Penitentiary, Pennsylvania, Point Lookout, Maryland, and Fort Delaware, Delaware.

Lieutenant-Colonel McCreary was sent from Fort Delaware among 600 other prisoners, who were put on a steamer and sent to Morris Island, a barren sand waste on the edge of the sea in front of Charleston, South Carolina, to be subjected to the fire from the guns of their friends, in retaliation for the confinement of Federal prisoners in the Charleston Jail, who became in the range of the firing from the Federal batteries on Morris Island and other available points from which Charleston could be reached by the Federal cannon.

The steamer on which Major McCreary and the six hundred were being transported to Morris Island, was out on the ocean four days and nights in making the trip from Fort Delaware to Charleston; and on the third night was, by a sudden gale, driven out of her course and stranded on the coast of South Carolina, but was afterwards pulled off by the gunboat which was acting as convoy, and went into Port Royal Harbor for repairs. The Confederate officers were finally landed at Morris Island, where they remained during the terribly hot months of July and August, and Major McCreary, Captain David Logan and Lieutenant Crow of Morgan's command, and a few other officers, were exchanged with the sick and returned to Richmond, Virginia, and the other officers of the six hundred were sent back to Fort Delaware.

At Richmond, Virginia, Major McCreary was given his commission as Lieutenant-Colonel by Secretary of War John C. Breckinridge, and granted a furlough for thirty days; and then was placed in command of a battalion of Kentucky troops and South Carolina troops, and did service in Virginia, participating in several engagements, and doing considerable scouting until the surrender at Appomatox.

A few months before the surrender many of the soldiers of Chenault's regiment and hundreds of the men belonging to Morgan's cavalry, were exchanged with the sick, and those fit for duty were assigned to Lieutenant Colonel McCreary's command. After the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox, Lieutenant-Colonel McCreary was with what was left of Chenault's regiment, to Kentucky, and the officers and men paroled and reported to General Hobson at Lexington, and were ordered to disband, and Colonel McCreary returned with his Madison County comrades to Richmond, Kentucky, terms of peace having been arranged by those in command of the contending armies; and since those eventful war times Colonel McCreary has served as Congressman, Governor and United States Senator.

This company was formed from a battalion composed almost entirely of Kentuckians who were enlisted by Lieutenant Colonel T. G. Woodward for 12 months. When ordered to be mustered in the Confederate service for 3 years, all declined except those whose names are here enrolled. The battalion has been serving as Partisan Rangers in Southern Kentucky since the first day of August, 1862, and no muster rolls have been returned from the companies forming the battalion to the Inspector General's office. This battalion was commanded by Lieutenant Colonel T. G. Woodward since its organization, the first of August, 1862.

Chas. M. Carroll,

Inspector and Mustering Officer for Brig. Gen'l N. B. Forrest

November 1st, 1863, Company was stationed at Cleveland, Tennessee, guarding the Railroad, and November 1, 1863 were attacked by the enemy and driven to Charlestown, Tennessee, where we repulsed them. KENTUCKY VOLUNTEERS, CONFEDERATE STATES ARMY—Continued.

NOTE—This roll is incomplete but furnished by Captain James F. Melton, with the following brief history—The company was organized by Captain Melton, of Calloway County, Kentucky, after his return from Virginia where he had taken part in the first battle of Bull Run as 2nd Lieutenant in the 9th Alabama Infantry.

With this Cavalry Company he was ordered to Fort Henry, Tennessee, where the Company remained until after the battle of Fort Henry, and retreated from there to Fort Donelson; engaged at battle of Fort Donelson under command of General N. B. Forrest and was sent to re-enforce Col. Roger Hanson's 2nd Kentucky Infantry. On the escape of Gen. Forrest with his command, this Company was left behind with Col. Hanson's 2nd Kentucky Infantry, and was surrendered with the garrison at the capitulation of Fort Donelson.

No account given of individual casualties in battle.
